v 5 issue 32: Luck of the Irish

St. Patrick's Day is coming and it is time to celebrate with all things green! Plus: Songs and a craft for your kids to enjoy.

Cover by Suymey Benson

1 Take a green onesie, add a reflexive pronoun & a little shamrock, and you've got a great little shirt to celebrate the culture of Ireland. Unlike those other St. Patty's tees, the "himself" onesie is appropriate for showing your love of the native land during any month of the year. Available at snugfits.com

2 Fuzzibunz provide exceptional service to baby's bottom while maintaining an ethical approach to diapering the planet. Through adjustable leg and waist settings fastened with durable snaps, stretchy elastic bands which prevent leaks without leaving marks, and a patented pocket design for easy stuffing and un-stuffing, this reusable cloth diaper is beneficial to both baby and Mother Earth.

3 Wrap your cherub in the heavenly softness of Eaz-z wraps. These hand-sewn blankets are made of 100% certified organic cotton, hemp and bamboo. The all in one blanket was specially designed to accommodate every baby, from preemie to triplets and decked out with ribbon loops on the ends. Generously-sized at 45"x45". Free Shipping thru March 21, 2010

4 The lily pad hue of the Striped Play Dress from Tea Collection has the fairies frolicking with joy. Cap sleeves allow the arms to flow freely during a jig and the quick pull-over capacity gets girls ready in a jiffy. The 100% cotton, machine washable dress definitely exudes fun in a very pretty way.
